

The Ultimate Persuasion Tool

Objective: Provide as much encouragement as possible to cause someone else to improve their performance in life.

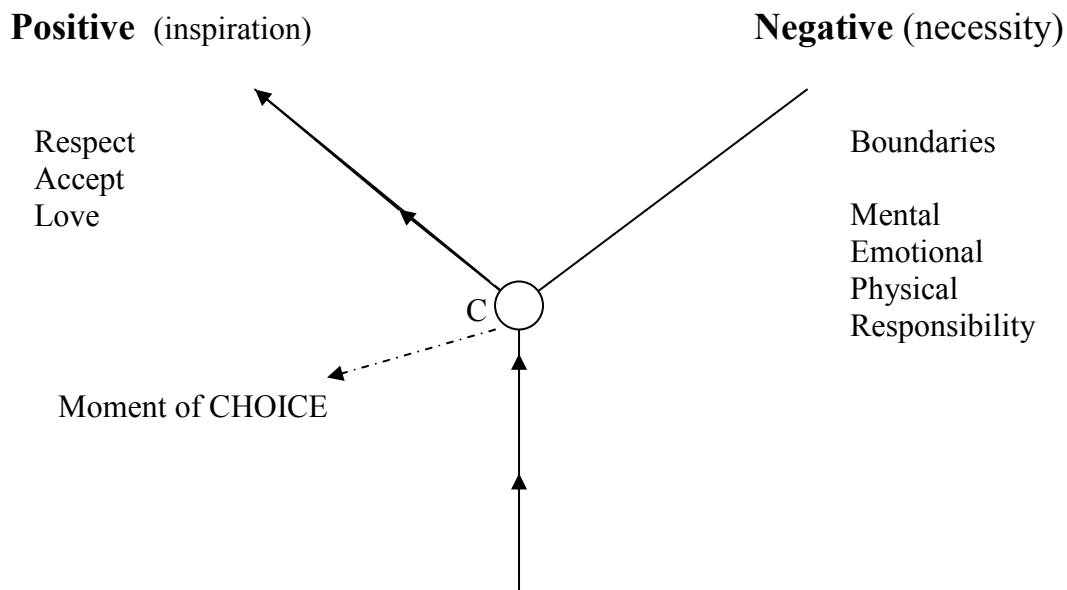

Ex:

1. Athletes go to Olympics,
2. Business men become millionaires,
3. Young people behave better and move their lives forward.

The two greatest motivations (Since the beginning of time).

1. Necessity (negative)
2. Inspiration (positive)

The Ultimate Persuasion Tool

This gives a person two great forces steering them in the direction you want them to choose.

Positive (inspiration)

Respect: The feeling they are respected by you.

Accept: The feeling they are accepted by you.

Love: The feeling they are loved by you.

Negative (necessity)

Boundaries

The purpose of boundaries:

- 1. To manage someone else's behaviour.
 - a. This case, young people's behaviour.
 - b. Prevent bad behaviour, encourage good behaviour.
 - c. Defend the logistics of the organization involved.

- 2. To cause constructive and effective thinking habits
 - a. Decisiveness- An improvement in choice making abilities.
 - i. See things more black and white, off or on.
 - b. Frame of mind- Respect and acknowledgement of others and subsequently themselves.
 - c. Knowledge of what works in life, and what doesn't.
 - d. Subsequent knowledge of oneself.

End result:

A human being's performance in every aspect is increased greatly through "boundaries" and is then safer, more effective, and more likely to produce good results for themselves and others.

The way to hold some one responsible is to:

1. Mentally hold them responsible.
2. Emotionally hold them responsible.
3. Physically hold them responsible.
